New-Build Villa Project

Contemporary Italian Style

Project Description

This private residence in North Turramurra, Sydney's Upper North Shore, is designed with a contemporary Italian aesthetic. Floor-to-ceiling glazing brings abundant natural light into the interior, while a whole-house custom cabinetry system integrates doors, wall panels and storage for a seamless spatial expression. Lacquered finishes, natural timber veneer and premium melamine panels create a cohesive yet richly layered material palette.

Design Highlights

A wall-mounted floating walk-in robe is a key feature, combining generous storage with minimalist design. Custom cabinetry runs throughout the residence, integrating living spaces, kitchens and bedrooms with the architecture. Natural wood textures, precise craftsmanship and concealed storage create a refined, bespoke luxury aesthetic.

Material Selection

Water-based Lacquer Finish

Suitable for wardrobe, foyer and kitchen cabinet doors. The paint surface is delicate and even with a premium tactile feel. Matte and high-gloss finishes are both available. It delivers outstanding vertical integrity, crafting a clean and upscale aesthetic for luxury residences.

Natural Solid Wood Veneer

Applied to partial decorative cabinet doors and open compartment panels, it brings in natural wood grain texture. It softens the stark rigidity of cool-toned lacquer finishes and endows the space with warm, cozy tactile quality.

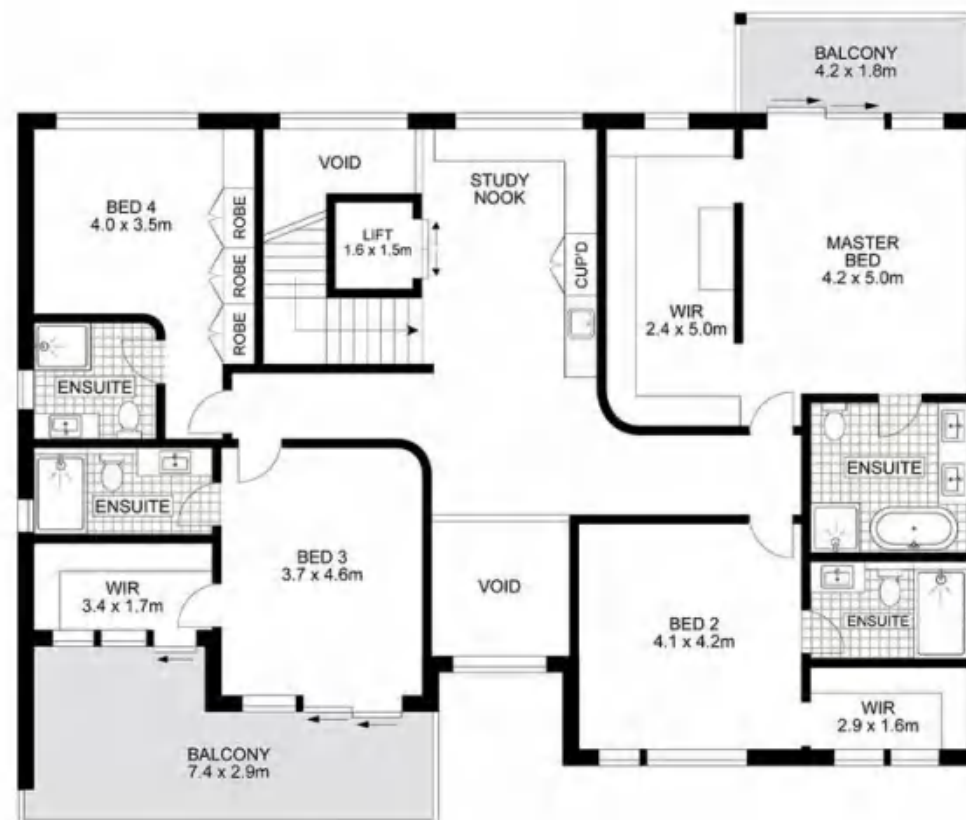

Premium Melamine Paint-Free Panel

Widely adopted as cabinet base material, inner cabinet panels and secondary bedroom wardrobe panels. The boards feature stable internal structure, outstanding resistance to Australian ultraviolet rays and extreme temperature variations, striking a perfect balance between cost efficiency and long-term durability.
